Commitments and Actions for Culture in Sustainable Cities
UCLG CULTURE SUMMIT
Jeju Culture & Arts Center - Jeju City
Jeju Special Self-Governing Province
Republic of Korea
10–13 May 2017

PROGRAMME: DRAFT 1 (12 March 2017)

Background
The second UCLG Culture Summit will be held in Jeju (Jeju-do, Republic of Korea) on 10-13 May 2017, hosted by the Jeju Special Self-Governing Province.

The UCLG Culture Summit is the main meeting point at global level of cities, local governments and other stakeholders that are committed to the effective implementation of policies and programmes on culture and sustainability. The 2nd Culture Summit of UCLG is one of the Urban Thinkers Campus promoted by the World Urban Campaign of UN-Habitat.

Entitled “Commitments and Actions for Culture in Sustainable Cities”, the second Culture Summit of UCLG aims to develop and reinforce messages on the role of culture in sustainable development, with a particular emphasis on the importance of cities and local spaces. It can also be seen as a forum for knowledge-sharing, peer-learning and networking among cities and local governments. It expects to gather approximately 300 participants from all world regions.

The second Culture Summit of UCLG will also respond to the growing importance given to the nexus of culture, cities and sustainable development by international organisations and frameworks. Recent milestones include the UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development (adopted in September 2015), the New Urban Agenda (adopted by the Habitat III Conference in Quito, October 2016) and the Statement of the 2nd World Assembly of Local and Regional Governments (also adopted in Quito, October 2016).

Also addressed in Jeju will be other relevant issues in contemporary global debates on sustainable cities, including the recognition and full implementation of the Right to the City and the development of participatory forms of local governance, enabling citizens to actively take part in local democracy.

The Culture Summit in Jeju builds on the results of the first UCLG Culture Summit, which took place in Bilbao on 18-20 March 2015 with the title “Culture and sustainable cities”. It gathered approximately 300 participants, including representatives of 75 cities and 69 local, national and international organisations from every continent. The Summit demonstrated how cities are taking the lead in recognising the absolute necessity of culture in sustainable development.

On the occasion of the 1st UCLG Culture Summit, a practical toolkit called Culture 21: Actions was adopted, which enables local governments, civil society activists and other relevant stakeholders to evaluate, implement and exchange knowledge on how to fully integrate culture in local sustainable development. Experiences from cities currently implementing Culture 21: Actions will be presented and discussed at the Jeju Summit.
Over three days, the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit will combine plenary sessions, smaller, thematic parallel sessions, project presentations and networking spaces. Additional information about these sessions is presented hereafter.

The World Urban Campaign – Urban Thinkers Campus

The 2nd Culture Summit of UCLG is one of the Urban Thinkers Campus (UTC) promoted by the World Urban Campaign (WUC) of UN-Habitat.

The WUC is an advocacy and partnership platform to raise awareness about positive urban change in order to achieve green, productive, safe, healthy, inclusive, and well planned cities. Its goal is to place the Urban Agenda at the highest level in development policies. It is coordinated by UN-Habitat and driven by a large number of committed partners - currently more than 180 partners and networks - from around the world. UCLG is a Lead Partner of the WUC.

The UTC model is an initiative of the WUC, conceived in 2014 as an open space for critical exchange between all stakeholders and partners aims to promote sustainable urbanization. It is also envisaged as a platform to advocate enlightened planning and design of our cities and propose urban solutions in addressing urbanization challenges to urban futures.

In line with the UTC model, the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit

- Aims to contribute to the implementation of the New Urban Agenda, towards “The City We Need”. Throughout the event, discussions will address the three Transformative Commitments for Sustainable Urban Development included in the New Urban Agenda (Sustainable Urban Development for Social Inclusion and Ending Poverty; Sustainable and Inclusive Urban Prosperity and Opportunities for All; Environmentally Sustainable and Resilient Urban Development). The UTC in Jeju is also deeply committed to the principles of the The City We Need 2.0 manifesto, including calling for cities that are socially inclusive and engaging; economically vibrant and inclusive; collectively managed and democratically governed; fostering cohesive territorial development; having shared identities and a sense of place; well-planned, walkable and transit-friendly; safe, healthy and promoting well-being; and a learning and innovative city.

- Will create an open space for critical exchange and consensus building, as demonstrated by a programme which involves representatives of different constituencies and partners organization, to debate around emerging practices that can positively contribute to a new urban paradigm in order to define their priorities. A range of formats will be used, to enable interactive discussions, including for those that follow the UTC at a distance.

- It is oriented to action: the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit will define priority actions in the short-, mid- and long-term, at local, regional and global level. It will foster the commitment of several stakeholders to a global agenda on culture and sustainable cities; and will broadly share, before, during and after, its aims, themes and results.

The programme of the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit will involve presentations and discussions around innovative practices on culture in sustainable cities, as well as participative workshops in which participants will jointly develop new narratives in this field – in the form of Urban Labs, where practices and models are tested in order to inspire participants in their thinking. Other sessions take the form of Roundtables and Plenaries, that will be informed by the conclusions of previous parallel sessions and Urban Labs.

The different session formats feed into one another and will ensure that all participants are informed of the results of other sessions. The active use of social media before and during the UTC, and the dissemination of a set of detailed outputs afterwards will also contribute to this.

Cultural rights lay at the basis of the understanding of culture as a fundamental dimension of sustainable development. As “Culture 21 Actions” outlines, making cultural rights effective involves not only safeguarding every person’s ability to access and take part in cultural life, but also devising governance arrangements which integrate diverse voices and allow them to take part in policymaking. Initiatives in this field, often informed by a rights-based approach to citizen participation in other policy areas, will be presented and discussed in this session.

Facing similar challenges in the areas of culture, sustainable development and other areas of urban governance, cities have increasingly adopted forms of formal and informal networking, at national, regional and international level. City networking may facilitate peer-learning, the exchange of good practices, joint reflection on issues of common interest and the establishment of collaborative schemes. In this session, several cultural networks involving Asian cities will present their approaches and experiences.

Parallel session A3: Local cultural policies and national frameworks
This session has received the support of IFACCA

In most countries, the quality of local cultural policies is partly determined by decisions adopted at national level, including the competences granted by constitutional frameworks, funding arrangements, and the existence of integrated spaces for multi-level governance and dialogue between national, regional and local governments. These aspects were the subject of a study conducted by IFACCA and the Committee on Culture of UCLG in 2016/17. Relevant conclusions of the study and other perspectives on the topic will be shared in this session.

In many cities and neighbourhoods, public spaces are very relevant spaces to enable access to culture, make cultural diversity visible and facilitate cultural interaction, as highlighted by “Culture 21 Actions”. The quality of public space is determined by a range of factors, including broader urban planning, the adequate safeguarding of tangible and intangible heritage, and the adequacy of urban design to participative cultural activities. Practices and challenges identified by cities in different world regions will be shared in this session.

The UN 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development, adopted in 2015, includes a set of references to cultural aspects, but falls short of a full understanding of the place of culture in sustainable development. Taking a mid- and long-term perspective, the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit aims to launch a reflection on potential steps to strengthen the place of culture in global sustainable development agendas – thus addressing both the implementation of the current 2030 Agenda and the design of similar agendas in the future. This session will bring together several global cultural networks, including some of those that were involved in the “The Future We Want Includes Culture” campaign (#culture2015goal), as well as other relevant stakeholders.

11.15–12.45
Parallel session C1: Cities, heritage and sustainability

Tangible and intangible heritage is one of the core components of local cultural policies, and one which faces a range of challenges in terms of sustainability – the availability of adequate resources and capacities, the impact of tourism, the involvement of local communities, and the broader understanding of its place in approaches to sustainable development. A theme of universal interest, in this session heritage and the policies that refer to it will be discussed by representatives of cities, networks and practitioners.

Parallel session C3: Local Cultural Industries and Sustainability

Support for cultural industries is one central component of many cities’ cultural strategies. From the perspective of sustainability, the design and delivery of programmes in this area needs to take into account a number of aspects, including the existence of adequate support mechanisms, the balance between cultural and economic objectives, and the availability of support for small-scale, emerging initiatives. A range of experiences and views from different world regions will be presented in this session.

Parallel session E2: “Build the Narrative” on Culture and Sustainable Cities (WORKSHOP)

Fostering a comprehensive understanding of the links between culture and sustainable development is a complex process. Around the world, a set of different narratives exist: those that have become the frame of UCLG’s work on culture (such as the aim to promote culture as the ‘fourth pillar’ of sustainable development and the stress on cultural rights as a basis for cultural approaches to sustainable development) as well as those that see in culture a resource to achieve economic or social aims. In this practical session, participants will be invited to discuss their narratives and discourses. Together, participants will identify obstacles to the understanding of the relationship between culture and sustainable development, and will be provided with tools and ideas to communicate their vision.

Chair: Toni BLANCO, Consultant

Parallel session E3: Towards a “Culture” Coalition for COP23 (WORKSHOP)

Building on the results of the previous day’s session D3 on “Cities, Culture and Climate Change”, this session aims to discuss the participation of cultural stakeholders in the COP23 Conference on Climate Change due to be held in Bonn in November 2017.
